I no longer listen to radio. I drive cross counrty in my job and don'tlike the unreliabilty of reception and constantly having to change stations as I leave one market and enter another. Besides, it's dangerous to have to search for a station in traffic. If traffic and weather is no longer available on XM radio then I won't get any because I will not go back to clear air radio except to catch Rush Limbaugh since they still haven't signed a contract with him.

My question to you is this: What is the difference in REQUIRING local cable and satellite companies to carry local news, weather and sports (a paid for service) and DENYING XM radio from carrying the same (also a paid for service)?
